

Historical human impacts

As with the recent human impacts (Section 2.3.1) you will need to continue describing human actions and their associated impacts on the study site ecosystems, however, you are now describing things that happened well into the past (prior to 1980).

Many of these impacts can be described as legacy impacts, meaning that the human action stopped a long time ago, but the environmental impacts are still having an effect of the ecosystems.

TASK:

Watch the video and take notes on the human actions and their associated impacts that have altered the ecosystems at the study site prior to the 1980s.
